WASHINGTON LETTER

[Special Correspondence.]

W. Trimmer, consul at Bluefields, Nicaragua, called on the president a few days ago and presented J. A. Dietrich of Bluefields, who recently brought to this country a number of Indian children from Nicaragua for education. They are now in Washington schools. Among the number is Prince Fernando, son of King Andrew of the Mosquito tribe, and his sister, Princess Isabella.

These two were introduced to the president by Mr. Dietrich, and accompanying them were two of their companions, Matilde and Micheleno. The prince is nine and the princess seven years of age. The youngsters were so excited that they forgot everything that had been taught them except to say, "How do, president?" when presented to him.

Wireless Telegraphy.
Admiral Manney, chief of the bureau of equipment of the navy department, has been pushing the development of wireless telegraph stations for naval and general maritime use. A report addressed by him to the secretary of the navy shows that the bureau already has established twenty-two stations along the coast.

It contains a list of sixty additional points where the wireless system is to be installed. These latter include not only the North American continent, but all of the insular possessions of the United States. The isthmus of Panama is included.

Landmark Gone.
The circular light tower which has been a landmark on the wharf at Port Washington for the past forty or more years has been removed, but the warning light will be continued from the top of the fog bell tower on the wharf. When the warehouse and bathhouse were constructed at Port Washington their position prevented the light from being seen from the low light tower. There being no further use for the little lighthouse, its removal was decreed.

Hero of the Missouri.
Mons Monssen, the gunner of the navy who was the hero of the explosion on the battleship Missouri, was presented to the president a few days ago by Dr. S. Clifford Cox, department commander of the United States War Veterans. It was Monssen who flooded the magazine of his ship when the explosion inside of that place was expected any moment. His gallant and heroic conduct was widely praised. The president was pleased to meet him and recalled the great service he had performed.

Webster's Washington Home.
St. Anne's Landmark of the capital has to go. This time it is to be the old home of Daniel Webster. The march of progress in Washington now keeps easy pace with the march of time. But it seems a pity that old buildings around which cluster stirring memories should have to be destroyed. Webster's last home in Washington and the one he came to love well must have a tender interest for the student of history. For many years the police court of the district has occupied the old church building at the corner of Sixth and D streets. Just to the east of it on D street and fronting Louisiana avenue stands the old Webster home, which since the death of its illustrious occupant has been used as a law building. The District government needs the money, and the property has been condemned.

Saw Mrs. Surratt Executed.
A recent visitor at the national capital was C. Mills of Tillamook City, Ore. "I was a soldier in Company B, Sixtieth Ohio volunteer infantry, at the close of the war," said Mr. Mills, "and my company was placed on duty at the old Capitol prison at the time of Mrs. Surratt's sentence. We remained on duty there until the day of the execution. On that day I was stationed at one of the doors, where I had a good view of the scaffold and the scene of the execution. I would not like to go through that again, but I was only seventeen years old at the time, and it did not affect me as it might do now. I came nearer to death in the old prison than I did in the army. While on watch in one of the corridors one day I grew sleepy and, not dreaming of danger, dozed off for a few seconds. I heard a noise and looked up to see the manacled hand of a prisoner under sentence of death just unlocking the door of his cell. He had put his arm through the transom and in a few minutes would have unlocked the door, procured my gun, killed me and liberated other prisoners. I have not been in Washington since 1865."

Tons of Postal Records.
The extension of the carrier service and rural free delivery has increased the volume of postal records enormously. One large building devoted exclusively to this branch of the service is now rented, and its halls and corridors are piled high with documents. The upper floors of the post-office building carry tons and tons of this stuff, and so great has the demand become for room that the postmaster general is now appealing to congress to provide for the purchase of another square of ground in the rear of the main building and the erection thereon of an annex to the department.

New Postoffice Division.
The phenomenal growth of the money order work of the auditor for the postoffice department has necessitated the creation of a new division in that branch of the public service. Auditor J. J. McCarty, with the treasury officials, has made two divisions from the present assortment and checking divisions, the largest in the sixth auditor's bureau, to be known hereafter as the checking and numbering and as sorting and filling divisions of the auditor for the postoffice department.

CARL SCHOFIELD.

CHOICE MISCELLANY

To Prevent Collisions.

New Zealand, which has people's railways, thinks it has them now arranged so that they won't kill people.

The state railways have made an interesting change in the signaling system which it is thought will make collisions impossible.

For a long time the block system has been used, but the "tablet" system has now been introduced. No engine driver is allowed to leave a station without a tablet in his possession, and the element of safety rests on the fact that the machines are so made that it is impossible for two tablets to be out at the same time.

If a driver leaves Auckland for Newmarket with a tablet, that tablet has to be deposited in the machine at Newmarket before another tablet is issued allowing a return train to leave for Auckland, and the electrical connection between the two stations makes it impossible to extract a tablet from the Auckland machine until the tablet has been put into the machine at Newmarket.

It is claimed that two trains cannot be on the same section at once, so that the danger of collisions is entirely done away with.

The New York Zoo.

The sides and rear of the animal cages at the New York zoo have been hung with painted scenes, like those on the stage of a theater. The animal lies down in the afternoon for a nap. When it goes to sleep it is in the center of a vast desert. When it wakes the stage manager has shifted the scenes, and the beast is lying on the bank of a brook, with mountains in the background. When a Manchurian leopard awoke the other day the scene had been changed to a hillside, with a few trees close by. It rubbed its sleepy eyes for a minute, saw the crowd staring at it through the bars and turned to one of the painted trees and attempted to spring into the branches. Down it came again, scraping its claws through the length of the canvas and looking very disappointed. For a few minutes the leopard looked at the tree and then slunk away into a corner.

Demanding Tips In Face of Death.

Money is so hardly earned by the Parisian workman and workwoman and existence is such a struggle that we need not wonder at the deadly tenacity with which earnings are clutched at. When some years ago the Opera Comique blazed amid a scene awful as that of a battlefield the women attendants thought of their tips, the half franc due here and there for a footstool. Unmindful of their own peril and that of others, they rushed to and fro, besieging half suffocated, half demented creatures for money.

A similar scene happened during the terrible catastrophe on the Paris underground railway last year. Although the delay of a few seconds might mean life or death, many workmen refused to move from the crowded station, clamoring for the return of the two-penny ticket.—Reynolds' Newspaper.

Rapid Unloading of Ships.

The world's record for boat unloading has just been broken at Comenat, on Lake Erie. The Wolvin, the largest freighter on fresh water, was emptied of a cargo of 9,945 tons of iron ore in four and one-half hours, reducing by six hours the best record heretofore made. The total delay from the beginning to the end of the unloading did not exceed five minutes. One by one eight monstrous hoisting machines were transferred in less than thirty-three cargo hatches of the Wolvin, while a vast audience watched the proceedings from the adjacent docks. Not that the unloading of big boats is rare at Comenat. It is today the foremost port of the world, its ore receipts for July being 738,554 tons, nearly 100,000 tons more than were ever received before.

Sugar Coated Butter.

England has recently imported the German practice of glazing butter by the use of sugar. Blocks of butter coated with a glaze of sugar covering, it is found, keep fresh much longer than if not so treated. The butter is first carefully kneaded and washed, then put into forms weighing one pound each and placed in a cool room. The glazing is done by painting the surface with a hot sugar lotion. The brush used should be very soft, and the painting should be done quickly. The sugar solution melts the surface of the butter, and the sugar and melted butter form a sort of varnish which protects the butter against deterioration from outside influences.

British Thrift.

The London Times says a good deal is made of the wealth of the French peasantry and of the extravagance of the British workman and his family. But now and then the government returns convey a reminder of the wonderful thrift of that section of the British people who save by penny and shillings and put by in one form or another for a rainy day. Including friendly and co-operative societies, trade unions and various types of savings banks, the aggregate funds of the thirty members of the working classes reach the sum of £308,000,000.

Dirty Children of Europe.

Susan B. Anthony on her return from Europe talked in an engaging way about the things she had seen over there. Of a certain slum she said: "The children in this slum are dirty, very dirty. I hardly know how I make clear to you the superlative degree of dirtiness that marks them. I was told for one thing that a mother in this slum often goes out on the street and washes half a dozen children's faces before she is able to find her own child."

REITERATION.

The Power of Asserting a Thing

Over and Over Again.

There is nothing more extraordinary than the effect produced by reiteration upon the public mind. Almost any nonsense makes an impression if only it is repeated often enough in print. The fortunes made by soaps, hair washes, patent medicines, patent aids to cookery, etc., are witnesses to this curious fact.

There is a form of self advertisement which proves even more pointedly than commercial advertisement the wonderful potency of assertion. It is something far subtler than what we have been discussing, and appeals to a smaller and more select public. In this case the deception goes further, but it is necessary to obtain the full effect that a person who makes the assertion should himself believe in its truth. The power to deceive with which the self deceived are often endowed is remarkable.

By countless assertions a stupid man can convince himself. That is why un-receptive people become so pigheaded and prejudiced as they get older.—London Spectator.

Nothing to Retract.

Mrs. Counterhop (with an injured air)—You told me before we were married that you were the highest salaried clerk in the store. Mr. Counterhop (equally injured)—So I am. I'm two inches and a half higher than any other salaried clerk in the whole establishment.—Chicago Tribune.

His Negative.

Bunsby—They speak of Multyb's negative virtues. What are they? Dawson—They're something I don't like. He always says no when you want to borrow anything of him.—Boston Transcript.

Had to Have It.

"You married me for my money!" she exclaimed angrily.
"Oh, well," he replied soothingly, "don't blame me. I couldn't get it any other way, you know."

One-half of our life is spent in making experiments; the other half in regretting them.—Brown Book.

It is better for a young man to blush than to turn pale.—Cicero.

The Way

The washing line of the times of Charles I. was a piece of beech wood five or six inches long, four and a half inches wide and half an inch thick and covered with linen at the back and sides. In front the names of the different articles, such as "ruffles," "bandes," "cuffs," "boothose," "pillowcases," "handkerchiefs," "socks," were printed from copperplate and protected by a sheet of horn.

The tally was divided into fifteen squares, in each of which was a dial numbered from 0 to 12 and a circular brass indicator fastened by a small central pin so as to revolve. Each of these indicators was placed near its outer edge with a round hole, through which one number of the dial was visible. By this very simple method the number of each article sent to the wash was easily shown, so that an accurate account could be kept.—London Standard.

Everyday Swindlers.

"There it goes again," said the trolley conductor as he rang the bell to let off a passenger who had only ridden for a square.

"You'd be astonished," continued the knight of the bell strap, "to know how many people try to beat the trolley for a free ride when they want to make a call a square or two away from home. They hop on the car, wait till it has started and then want to know if the car doesn't go to some place which they know it doesn't come within a mile of. In this way they get their ride for nothing and go on their way in the belief that they have fooled the conductor."—Philadelphia Press.

OUR NEXT CONGRESSMAN

Don't tie Parker's hands by electing an incapable man to represent us in congress from the second district. Elect a man who has proven his worth. Elect Hon. Theodore A. Bell. He has a record that the district is proud of. He did not tie Roosevelt's hands; neither did Roosevelt tie his hands while in congress. An honest president is too busy conducting the affairs of his office, and ought to be too big a man to stoop to do small politics for "Dunk" McKinlay in order that he can give place to a lawyer of ability to fill the place of assistant U. S. Attorney.

SETTLE YOUR DIFFICULTIES ON TOP YOUR HOUSE

The easiest and most effective way to end the troubles you may be having at home, on account of a defective roof, is to cover it with Elaterite or Mastic roofing, which is the only made that does not wear out, and you will find that it will never cost you another cent after it is once laid. It is the one roofing that meets all exigencies, resisting the heat of summer and the cold of the winter, is not affected by climatic conditions, needs no painting, is fire-proof and will not leak. Send for samples of Elaterite and Mastic, and full information, and you will learn something interesting. Sam Meyer, Headsburg, distributor for Sonoma, Lake and Mendocino counties. A. S. Cures Winter Cough

J. E. Gover, 101 N. Main St., Ottawa, Kan., writes: "Every fall it has been my wife's trouble to catch a severe cold, and therefore to cough all winter long. Last fall I got for her a bottle of Horehound Syrup. She used it and has been able to sleep soundly all night long. Whenever the cough troubles her two or three doses stops the cough and she is able to be up and well." 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold by L. S. Simmons, Prescription Druggist, Sonoma, Cal.

First Murder Case in Years

To be Tried in the Superior Court of this County

Scene

Salone, the man who shot J. Guidotti at Glen Ellen and wounded another man named Ricci, was given a preliminary examination Tuesday afternoon at Glen Ellen in Justice Gibson's court on the charge of murder and was held for trial in the Superior Court, the evidence being considered strong enough to warrant his being held on the capital charge.

Three witnesses were called, in addition to the doctor, who described the nature of the wounds from the bullets, which robbed Guidotti of life. The accused man is said to have first started a quarrel among the men over the dice game in a saloon some time prior to the shooting. From testimony it is alleged that Salone did the shooting at a time when there was apparently no quarrel in progress.

District Attorney Pond represented the prosecution and Attorneys Wm. F. Cowan and Joe P. Berry appeared for the defendant. Salone was brought back to the county jail where he will remain until his case comes up in the Superior Court.

The shooting occurred two weeks ago last Sunday night. Guidotti was shot in the head and died after lingering for several hours. Ricci was also shot, but not seriously. He was discharged from the county hospital on Monday afternoon and was one of the witnesses at the preliminary examination. At the inquest held by Coroner Frank Blackburn over the remains of Guidotti, the jury returned a verdict to the effect that the man had come to his death as the result of gunshot wounds at the hands of Salone, and they formally charged him with murder. When the case comes up for trial it will be the first murder case in the courts of this county for some time.

A very enjoyable Halloween social and banquet was given by the local Rebekah Lodge last evening in I. O. O. F. hall. A number of invited guests were present and a great time was had.

C. Futterer, the pioneer tailor of Sonoma, will remove his residence and shop from the Von Geldern building on 1st street east to the Yenni building on Napa street where he will be pleased to see his old patrons as well as new ones, who want good suits of reliable goods and well and properly made to fit.

Mr. Futterer knows the business of making garments thoroughly and a suit made by him will be sure to suit you and to fit you.

Give him a trial.

Glen Ellen News Notes

Litigation came thick and fast in Judge Gibson's court the past week.

A Halloween social will be given in Mayflower Hall next Friday evening. Pumpkin pie and ginger bread. Yum-yum.

J. B. Small, the contractor and builder of Sonoma, who has considerable work on the Steiger place at present, was in town last Tuesday.

John Cozad, our local tonsorial artist, is unable to accommodate all the business coming his way and has in consequence added another chair to his establishment and engaged extra help.

Mr. E. H. Mann and Mrs. M. Getchell who were married here some weeks ago, received an old time "charivari" last Sunday evening. They responded in great shape, after which the well wishers congratulated the happy couple and departed peacefully to their homes.

The preliminaries of the Guidotti murder case were aired in Judge Gibson's court last Tuesday. John Salone the supposed murderer, was held over to appear before the Superior Court. L. Ricci, the partner of Guidotti, was placed under bonds amounting to $1000 for threatening an officer.

Dr. Estes has been taking early morning walks of late, enjoying the pure fresh air of Sonoma Valley.

He has made some valuable finds during his pedestrian feats, having found a box containing three beautiful ladies' hats and at another time a lady's belt. The losers should go to the doctor.

L. Quartaroli of Sonoma has filed a petition asking to be appointed guardian of the estate of Celestine Guidotti, an incompetent. J. Guidotti, the man shot and killed by Giovanni Salone at Glen Ellen, was guardian of the incompetent's property, but his death necessitated the appointment of another guardian. Attorney John Tyler Campbell represents the petitioner.

The idiotic howls, "Don't tie Roosevelt's hands" and "Don't let any Democrats steal seats in congress," are going the rounds of the partisan press.

Since when is it a crime for American citizens to select their representatives by ballot? Are Democrats thieves when they vote for their nominees. Since when?

Catholic Fair Is Over

Fair Closed Monday Evening

A List of Those Who Won Prizes

FRIDAY NIGHT.

The pupils of the Presentation Convent did themselves proud at their entertainment in Union Hall last Friday evening.

Each and every number was heartily appreciated and showed the results of ability and the excellent training they received at the hands of their thorough teachers. The program was successfully carried out.

The laughable and entertaining farce, "No Cure, No Pay" was well received.

SATURDAY NIGHT

Union Hall was filled to overflowing last Saturday night to hear the minstrel troupe under the direction of W. W. Brackett and Mr. Kearns of San Francisco, and ably assisted by good home talent.

Those who assisted in the entertainment were: Messrs. Brackett, Kearns, Ray Hunter, Robt. Prussia, Guy Weems, Claude Johnson, Walter Murphy, James Small and Mrs. P. McMullen, Mrs. Burlingame, Mrs. S. A. Ringstrom, and Miss Ruth Poppe.

After the program the ladies in charge of the various booths did a thriving business.

Interspersed among the many witty and laughable sayings and songs of the end men and middle men, were the following well received numbers:

Vocal solo, "I love no one but you," Mrs. S. A. Ringstrom; vocal solo, "Let me die," Walter Murphy; vocal quartette, Mrs. Burlingame, Mrs. McMullen, Mrs. Ringstrom, and Miss Ruth Poppe; vocal solo, Miss Ruth Poppe.

When James Small, the veteran Sonoma minstrel, was announced for a song, the audience was immediately in an uproar of applause. He sang to the Queen's taste as he always does, and received a hearty encore to which he responded. No outside talent can outshine our own Jim when it comes to doing the minstrel stunts.

Frank Ahern pleased the audience by his very skillful back and wing dancing. He was encored.

Little Miss Coyne of San Francisco, danced the Irish hornpipe to perfection and very graciously answered the encores.

Miss Ruth Poppe's sweet voice was at its best and her well rendered solo was well enjoyed.

The proceeds of the evening were over $300; and Saturday night proved to be the banner night of the fair.

MONDAY NIGHT.

All was free Monday night at Union Hall and the drawings for the various prizes took place before the audience.

No. 419 was the lucky ticket that won the cow. Ticket No. 189 held by Tony Serres of El Verano, won the lady's fine gold watch. Ticket No. 65 purchased by Blair Hart, won the $20 gold piece.

Some of the other lucky winners and their prizes are—Tom Mullen, table, donated by Mrs. L.H. Green; Jas. F. Tate, leather cushion, donated by Mrs. Geo. Gies; James F. Tate, silver cake dish; Chas. Wall, handsome buggy robe, donated by Geo. Breitenbach; Sonoma's bicycle and harness man; Henry Dakin, buggy robe; Mrs. Mullen, El Verano, beautiful couch; Mrs. Donahue, framed picture of Father Leahy; Father Keane, silver bracelet, donated by Miss Aguilon; G. H. Hotz, umbrella; Miss Rosella Graham, silk cushion; Otto Gerick, Jr., buggy whip; John Watt, Sr., two sacks of flour; Henry Dakin; wedding cake; (wonder if he will use it to fulfill its purpose?); John Lawler, Jr., beautiful stand lamp; Mrs. Ed. Johansson, oak rocking chair; F. A. Ahern, embroidered center piece; Father Keane, hand painted cake plate; Dal. Pogetto, manicure set; Mrs. Ringstrom, embroidery work; Jos. B. Small, salad set; Marcella Graham, lady's hat; Father Leahy, lemonade set; Geo. Bain, box of tea; Father Rogers, red poppy center piece; Miss O'Connor, Spanish work center piece; M. Cummings, cheese (the whole cheese); Tony Cherichia, sofa cushion; Anton Kiser, $2.50 Mr. Kiser Battenburg lace collar; A. Andrieux, embroidered center piece; Mrs. Mullen couch; Miss K. Watt, sofa pillow; J. Small, sofa pillow; Miss M. McGill, pair white blankets; Harry Equi, lace center piece; Paul Rolin, pair of vases; Geo. Goess, comb and brush; Emmet Mullen, center table; Mrs. C. Ohm, lace handkerchief; Mrs. Claud Johnson, Japan lamp shade; Mrs. Batcheler, coffee set; Mrs. Tomasi, mirror; Miss Tomasi, $5 gold piece; Geo. Gies, box of cigars; Ed. O'Connor, salad set; Mr. Crockoff, buggy whip.

Man Killed in Glen Ellen

John Wilkinson Crushed to

Death by a Load of Lumber

Wednesday evening about ten o'clock as Ed. Goethe and John Wilkinson were nearing the Goethe home above Glen Ellen with a four horse load of lumber, the front wheel struck a deep cut on the outer edge of the grade. The bank caved under the heavy load, and men, wagon and horse went over the embankment. Ed. Goethe was hurled about 20 feet away against a barbed wire fence and received painful but not serious cuts and bruises.

John Wilkinson was thrown to the ground by the sudden impact and the load of lumber and the heavy wagon were piled on top of him. His death must have been instantaneous. As soon as possible aid was summoned but the unfortunate man was dead when taken from beneath the load.

Coroner Blackburn was notified and an inquest was held yesterday afternoon by Judge Gibson.

Undertaker Bates went to the scene of the accident yesterday afternoon prepared to take charge of the remains.

John Wilkinson was about forty years of age and had resided for about 25 years in Benet and Sonoma Valleys where he is well and favorably known.

Steve Story, the well known pioneer of Benet Valley took Mr. Wilkinson from an orphanage when he was a mere lad and raised him to manhood.

His sad and sudden demise is deeply deplored by a wide circle of friends and acquaintances.

The body was brought to this city yesterday evening and the funeral was held from the undertaking parlors on Broadway this afternoon at 1 o'clock, Rev. Reed officiating. Interment was in Valley cemetery.

Death of Mrs. R. Hall

Died at Her Beautiful Home

on Broadway Last Evening

With profound sadness do we record the death of Mrs. Robert Hall, occurred at her beautiful home below town last evening. The deceased lady had been a patient invalid for a long time and the summons came as a release to a pure, cheerful and suffering soul.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall have resided here many years and are held in the highest esteem by a wide circle of friends.

Mrs. Hall's was an ideal womanly character and her quiet and unostentatious charities and her devotion to home endeared her to all who came in contact with her.

Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved ones in their intense sorrow for the one they dearly loved.

The funeral will take place from her late residence at the foot of Broadway tomorrow afternoon, Rev. Rowe officiating.

The remains will be taken to San Francisco Sunday for cremation.

The partisan press are endeavoring to break down the phenomenal strength of Hon. Theodore A. Bell by accusing him of using his membership in the Knights of Pythias and the Eagles as a means of getting votes.

None know better that this is a lie than the members of those orders themselves. The members of these orders who are going to vote for Mr. Bell are going to do so purely on his merits and as they know him to be a man of spotless honor.

Anyhow what has all this got to do with Mr. Bell being our next Congressman? Is it anything to wonder at that Theodore Bell stands high in the esteem of his fraternal brethren?

It seems that the McKinlay organs are spending all their strength trying to whip into line that great class of intelligent and patriotic Republicans whose motto is "My country first, my party next." The McKinlayites would like to have all Republicans follow blindly, putting party success first, and giving no thought to the welfare of the country. Is it not a fact, repeatedly proven by history, that even the best system of government in the hands of dishonest or incapable officials becomes the worst, and almost any form of government in the hands of honest, patriotic and capable officers, is productive of peace, happiness and prosperity of its people?

Then why should we follow any political party blindly? The best citizens don't do it, and won't do it. It is this class that is the salvation of a republic.

A Good Friend to Women.

"A friend in need is a friend in deed." The final test of friendship is deeds, not words; not promises but performance. When Mrs. Ruff refers to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as a good friend to women she speaks out of a wide experience of the merits of that medicine.

When her "life was hanging in the balance" it brought her back to health. As Director of the German Orphans' Home she has opportunity time and again to test its power in the cure of womanly diseases. As a result she says: "Our great remedy for female trouble is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. We have found nothing that would so quickly cure the disease, relieve inflammation and stop pain."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong, sick women well.

"Five years ago when my life was hanging in the balance, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was brought to my home," writes Mrs. Caroline Ruff, Director of German Orphans' Home, residing at 339 Rowena Street, Detroit, Mich. "I took it, and like a brave friend, it fought the battle against disease and won me back to health. Ever since then I have been its firm friend. We frequently have mothers come to our 'Home' who are suffering with uterine troubles, inflammation, tumors and ulcerations. Our great remedy for all female trouble is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and we have found nothing so far which would so quickly cure disease, relieve inflammation, and stop pains. It is a good friend to women."

Sick women are invited to consult Doctor Pierce by letter, free. All letters are held as strictly private and the written confidences of women are guarded by the same strict professional privacy observed by Dr. Pierce and his staff in personal consultations with weak and sick women at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

GIVEN UP TO DIE.
B. Spiegel, 1204 N. Virginia St., Evansville, Ind., writes: "For over four years I was troubled with a kidney and bladder affection. I lost flesh and was unable to work. Three physicians failed to help me and I was given up to die. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me great relief and after taking the second bottle I was entirely cured."

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In the Wake of The Dory

By GENIE ROSENFELD
Copyright, 1904, by the
S. S. McClure Company

It was the 14th of April. The weather had been so bad that for days no boats could venture out, but in the forenoon of the 14th the conditions became so favorable for fishing that all the men were preparing to go.

During the morning Don, having mended his nets and made his boat ready to go out with the tide, went to see old Captain Rodrigo and, showing him the order on Felipe for $500,
made a formal demand for Nita's hand.
The old man appeared to be puzzled.

He was seated by the stove smoking his pipe and reading his paper. With sudden determination he laid down his pipe and journal and went to the door
and called into the yard.

"Nita! Felipe!"
Nita came in quickly, a flush on her face and an angry gleam in her eye.
Felipe lounged behind her.

"What are you doing here?" she asked fearfully.
Don had not time to answer. Old Captain Rodrigo was on his feet.

"See here," he said. "I'm 'bout tired of this hull tarnation business. Daughter, here's these two fellers a-peakin'
me. You can't marry 'em both, so take one and be done with it. They'll either or 'em suit me."

Nita looked from one to the other,
but Felipe was the first to find voice.
"So you've asked for her?" he said to Don.

"I have," said Don.
"Don't you know that she belongs to me?"

"She have promise to marry with me
the 1st of May." Don was standing at the kitchen table, looking straight across it into the other man's face.

"And I have promised her that she shall marry me on the 1st of May,"
said Felipe, his beady eyes glistening.
Each seized one of her hands.

"Nita!" both said appealingly to her.
For a moment they stood thus. Then the stillness was broken by the 12 o'clock whistle from the fish factory
across the road.

Captain Rodrigo broke the silence.
"It's high tide in ten minutes, boys.
Ain't you a-goin' out with the food?"

Without a word the two men turned and strode out of the door, Don first,
Felipe following.

Nita, who had remained speechless
throughout the whole scene, watched them as they kept up their silent walk to the dock where their boat was moored.

When they were out of sight she sank down, trembling and helpless, on her doorstep.

Nita never knew how long she sat
thus. She was roused from her dumb misery by a touch on her shoulder.
She looked up. The shadows were already beginning to fall, and in the gathering darkness Louis, little Joe's father, stood beside her.

"Louis! Louis!" she cried. "Have you not gone fishing? Then they are alone!"

"I couldn't go," Louis answered. "Joe is sick. I haven't been him over to you, but I thought perhaps you wouldn't mind if I sat you to come over. Seems as if it promised to be a good catch, and I don't want to miss it."

In a moment the whole story was poured into Louis' ears. It was clear that he shared her apprehensions.
Waiting only to establish her at the bedside of Joe, he borrowed Tom, the big apprentice of Francis, the grocer.

What a night that was for Nita! The wind had risen. Swift furies of rain pattered on the window panes, and finally the world horn of the fish factory sounded, telling the fishers not to sell their catch to tramp steamers, but to bring it to the home market.

Once during the night her father came to her.

"Daughter," he said, "I guess I hadn't order spoke that ways to them
fellers. I—I didn't mean no harm, daughter. But I'll be glad when them boats is in."

Nita clung to him.
"I know—I know, father. You didn't mean any harm, but I'm thinking of Carlos and Diego."

"I'm thinkin' of that too. Maybe we'd order spoke about them boats afore." And the old man wandered disconsolately off into the night, his oliskins screaming harshly as they rubbed against each other.

In the gray of the morning the boats began to come in. They had had another great catch, and the good news soon spread, bringing all the fisher folk
of the town to the wharf.

At last all the boats were in but Don's and Louis'.
Nita in her watching of little Joe could not stay at the wharf, and the anxiety began to tell on her father.

He asked first one fisherman and then another if they had seen Don's boat and finally started out the story of his fears.

The next time Nita returned the crowd on the pier had increased, and all made way for her with murmurs of sympathy.

"Father?" she said inquiringly.
"Yes, it's out," the old man answered, "and I feel better for the tellin'."

About 10 o'clock a dory appeared around the light—Don's dory and close following it Louis' little boat.
The kindly neighbors rushed to Nita,
who was with Joe.

"It's all right, Nita! Here's the boats!" they cried.
Francis, the grocer, had joined the group and was looking at the incoming boats through his glass.

Substitute for Glass.

Oil Paper Used by Market Gardeners in Germany.

In a small way oil paper is used for glass in many places, but only in Germany is this done on a large scale.
The florists and market gardeners in the district of Frankfurt use what they call "fensterpappe" in great quantities for their greenhouses.

There is no difficulty or secret about its preparation or use. The paper is nailed to light wooden frames and painted again and again with boiled linseed oil until it is so saturated that the last coat forms a smooth, glistening surface like varnish. This renders it translucent and water proof.

It is found to admit sufficient light
for growing plants, does not need shading in hot sunshine, lasts well, is not easily broken and, on the whole, is a hundred times cheaper than glass. It is, of course, useful rather than ornamental and would not do as a substitute for glass in a private conservatory.—London Mail.

Traits of Apes.

It has been observed that if the tame dog is taken back to the wild state he loses his voice. These "sounding voices" are produced in the animal's throat in a way similar to human language, but are not "voices" proper nor "languages" proper, and yet they are full of psychological expression and reveal the animal's psychic states. If we tickle a chimpanzee in the armpit the touch produces a grin on the face similar to that of a man under like circumstances. He also emits laughter-like sounds. The same is the case with the orang outang. The gorilla knits
the brow when angry, just like men.

We often observe in apes a complete change in the facial muscles when something is going to happen, be it agreeable or disagreeable. It is so also with the child. In apes there is evidently the same connection between the facial muscles and vocal muscles
as in man.

The Tiger's Bath.

The tiger will sit with only his head out of water on a blazing hot day in an Indian jungle. Sir Samuel Baker, after hearing for a tiger for the greater part of a day, found and shot one in this position thoroughly enjoying itself.
They will also nearly immerse themselves when they come down to drink
at night and leave a long dripping trail
on the sand behind when they emerge.

Superstitions.

Things That Some People Imagine
Are Signs of Bad Luck.

Some people otherwise sensible will draw back rather than walk under a ladder. Even strong-minded women hesitate to show their contempt of this superstition when they hear that it prevents the single from marrying for that year and to the married it betokens death. The Dutch hold that it was a sign that you would be hanged because of the important part which a ladder used formerly to play in the last act of the law. A Scotch tradition holds it lucky to wish when going under a ladder.

To miss the mouth in eating and drop one's victuals is a sign of approaching sickness. Every time one turns a loaf upside down a ship is wrecked. On this the Dutch say, "If a loaf lies topsy turvy it is not good." Scott in "The Tales of a Grandfather" says, "Never turn a loaf in the presence of a Monteith." Hazlitt in his "English Proverbs" quotes, "Are there traitors at the table that the loaf is turned the wrong side upward?"

That ill fortune attended the spilling of salt is an idea arising from the belief of the ancients that salt was the symbol of friendship, and if it fell casually the ancients thought their friendship would not be of long duration. In Leonardo da Vinci's "Last Supper" the betrayer is represented in the act of spilling salt.

Struggling With the Language.

A story is told of a German teacher at an American girls' college who was not thoroughly acquainted with the English language and the college slang
had not helped her in solving the puzzle.
She had heard the girls talk about going off on larks. Returning one day from a picnic she said to some of the girls, "Oh, I have been on such a canary." She startled her class one day by complaining against some of the cold days of September, saying, "Why, it was so cold one day I had to stay in my room all the morning and sit with my feet over the transom trying to keep warm."

Salvation With Food.

Fourteen-year-old Emma, who had come home from her first day's schooling in elementary physiology, was questioned by her parents as to what she had learned.

"Papa," she complained, "I don't think I like physiology."
"Why not, my dear?"
"Well, teacher was explaining digestion to us today, and she said we had to mix salvation with every mouthful
of food."—Harper's Weekly.

Poison Ivy.

It May Be Known by Its Three Leaves
and White Berries.

Frequently a person is puzzled know whether a vine with which comes in contact is poison ivy or ghia creeper. The poison ivy has three leaves and white berries, while ghia creeper has five and purple berries.

The only way to prevent a bad treatment as soon as the itching sensation becomes apparent. If the is allowed to continue until the tules break the patient is pretty to suffer for a week or more. A remedy is the extract of grise-which it used in time by rubbing on the affected parts every five minutes will give relief. Sugar of lead salve is also a standard remedy.

"If a person who has touched poison
ivy will wash the exposed part thoroughly with soap as soon after as possible poisoning can generally be prevented. The poisonous principle in the ivy is a corrosive essential oil which is very volatile. It is not necessary to touch the ivy in order to be poisoned.
Passing near it may be sufficient, and when ivy is burned the smoke is also poisonous.

Many people are not at all sensitive to poison ivy and can handle it without fear, while to others a mere breath of it is sufficient to cause troublesome eruptions. Poison oak and poison ivy are the same thing. The plant has a peculiar way of changing its habit of growth according to local conditions.—
Pathfinder.

Discretion a Failure.

"I was at the husking bee one day.
Great fun."
"Find a red ear?"
"Yes."
"Kiss the prettiest girl?"
"Nope. Didn't dare. All the pretty girls were engaged to husky farmers."
"What did you do?"
"Kissed the homeliest girl."
"Did that give satisfaction?"
"Not a bit of it. Each of the husky farmers felt that I had personally
snubbed his best girl."—Cleveland
Plain Dealer.
